A watercolor illustration of a sunlit forest. In the foreground, there are bright yellow flowers with green leaves. Behind them, several trees with brown trunks and green foliage stand against a background of soft, warm light, suggesting sunlight filtering through the canopy. The overall style is soft and painterly.

“ A sun-filled house is a happy home.. ”

*~ Délia Tétreault, foundress of the first missionary community in the Americas:
The Missionary Sisters of the Immaculate Conception.*

Born in Marieville, Délia grew up in this beautiful corner of the Montérégie region characterized by its tranquility and wide-open spaces. Enthusiastic, vibrant and rooted in her environment, she knew the benefits of nature and marveled at them. Flowers, fruit trees, plants, sunshine: she invited her young community to surround themselves with these magnificent gifts.

An ecologist before her time (the term was first coined in 1866, barely a year after she was born!), Délia knew that nature and harmony go hand in hand. Both in the choice of sites for her many homes and in the importance of using greenery, flowers and plants to brighten up their spaces, Délia let the beauty of nature express itself fully, to the delight of her community.

The 2026 edition of the Délia-Tétreault Museum calendar pays tribute to this philosophy, which places beauty and nature at the heart of spiritual life and daily well-being.

The Délia-Tétreault Museum team wishes you a happy new year filled with moments of beauty and wonder!
